

I appreciate whomever thought of this law in the first place. Home has been a much more peaceful place since this option came into effect. Why would the federal government not respect my right to privacy anyway? I mean isn't life hectic enough without the possibility of some stranger trying to pressure you, about some product or service they are trying to sell. It has been sometimes the most annoying thing in an otherwise already hectic day. Please try hard not to let this law be overthrown.

thanks

Crystal E. Raike